

hEARD

help Exploring At-Risk Disengagement

PARTICIPANTS REQUIRED

The 'hEARD' study

Have you recently left a service for people at risk of psychosis?
(these are often called ARMS or EDIT teams)

Would you like to help us improve these services?

We are aiming to explore why people choose to stop receiving support from ARMS services (or 'disengage'), so we can improve care delivered in the NHS to improve people's experiences.

We are looking for service users who are struggling to engage with services currently, and those who have left before a planned discharge within the last 12 months, aged between 14-65.

You will be invited to take part in one interview with a member of the research team exploring your experiences. Compensation will be offered for your valuable time and input (a £25 pounds thank you payment, and up to £10 for travel expenses).
